Ann Courtney has over 20 years court based experience at all levels for local authorities, guardians, parents and other family members.

When the instruction is by a parent she takes care to support the most vulnerable people in society who are facing the loss of a child and tries to ensure that they are heard and treated with respect.

Ann accepts instructions on a direct access basis to represent parents and grandparents who are unable to agree contact arrangements with a child or with whom the child should live.

Internal relocation disputes are an area of expertise. International issues including under the Hague Convention are within her experience.
